

Schedule of Records Requested

Great House Farm / Tŷ Mawr, Llandough, Vale of Glamorgan · HER GGAT02038s · Event GGATE003875

REFERENCE GHF/HENEB/2026-09-20 · TO Heneb – The Trust for Welsh Archaeology (Glamorgan Gwent), Sa12 Business Centre, Seaway Parade Industrial Estate, Baglan, Port Talbot SA12 7BR · FROM Hywel Buckler · DATE 20 September 2026
ACCOMPANIES email request of 8 September 2026 · BASIS Environmental Information Regulations 2004; alternatively Historic Environment (Wales) Act 2023, ss.194–195, and Heneb's own access policy

This schedule itemises the records sought in my request of 8 September 2026. It is organised by period so that it can be split between the desks that hold the material. Where an item is too broadly framed, I would rather be told which part to narrow than have the whole item refused. Where a record exists only in hard copy, I am content to inspect it by appointment rather than have copies made.

Priority item. If Heneb can supply nothing else quickly, a schedule or index of the records it holds for this site — a list, not the records themselves — would allow every other item below to be targeted precisely, and would save considerable staff time.

PART A — THE HISTORIC ENVIRONMENT RECORD the record itself, and how it was built

1. Full record text for GGAT02038s (Great House Farm) and for all associated event, find and monument records, including GGATE003875.
2. The complete source list for each record, including any source cited in the narrative but not listed as a discrete source.
3. The revision or audit history of each record: what changed, when, by whom, and on what authority.
4. The national grid reference recorded against each record at each revision, and what feature each reference is intended to fix.
5. Any records for the site that have been superseded, merged, retired or deleted, and the reason.
6. Any record relating to the registered village green VG 41, the public right of way across the site, or the former Llandough Limeworks and its quarries.

PART B — 1978 TO 1982 the Trust's earliest involvement

7. The site archive for the excavations understood to have been carried out by the Trust in or about 1978–1980 at or adjacent to Llandough, including context records, plans, sections, photographs, finds records and any interim or unpublished report.
8. Any record identifying the landowner, occupier or party granting access for that work, and any correspondence about access.
9. The Trust's consultation response on the emerging East Vale Local Plan so far as it concerned this site, including the letter to Mr J. Maitland Evans of the Vale of Glamorgan (understood to be dated 1 October, year to be confirmed) referring to "Ty Mawr Farm (H12.1)" as "a three acre residential site", together with any enclosures.
10. Any correspondence with the Llandough Community Council, the Barry and Vale Archaeological Group, or local residents about the site in this period.

PART C — 1988 demolition and its aftermath

11. All records created by or received by the Trust in 1988 concerning Great House Farm, including any note of the demolition of the outbuildings on 30 November 1988 and of the farmhouse on 5–6 December 1988.

12. Any record, correspondence or photograph relating to the inspection of Great House Farm by Cadw on or about 29 July 1988 for possible emergency listing, and any copy of the photographs then taken.
13. The source and authority for the description of the building as a "county treasure", and any record of the list or schedule on which it appeared.
14. All primary records underlying the post-demolition observations carried forward into the HER — the ogee-stopped beam with torus recovered from the rubble, the fireplace jamb, the reported "armour" beneath the rear wing, the carved stone capital reported lost during demolition, and the medieval pottery north-east of the house. For each: the field note, sketch, photograph, sample record or letter, and its present location.
15. Any correspondence with RCAHMW, Cadw or the National Museum of Wales about the building before or after demolition.

PART D — 1989 TO 1990 the outline application and the field evaluation

16. The Trust's consultee response to planning application 89/01396/OUT ("Comments and Recommendations"), in the form sent, with all enclosures and appendices.
17. The further comments supplied to the Vale of Glamorgan following discussions with the Trust, appended to the officer's report as Appendix B.
18. Any letter from the Trust that was appended to the officer's report as Appendix C or D, and the Trust's copy of the applicant's agents' response appended as Appendix E.
19. All correspondence with Debenham Tewson Ltd, Morgan Bruce (solicitors), and BP Properties Ltd, 1988–1991, including the terms on which the Trust was commissioned to carry out the 1990 assessment and any record of how the Trust's dual role — advisor to the planning authority and contractor to the applicant — was declared and managed.
20. The full site archive for the 1990 field evaluation ("Land at Great House Farm, Llandough", August 1990): trench plans, section drawings, context sheets, photographs, finds and environmental records, the site grid, and the levels used.
21. In particular, all records for Trench 7, which is understood to have clipped the north-east corner of the former house and to have exposed a stone floor and a mortared north–south partition wall, together with its position on the site grid.
22. The Trust's copy of the 1974 measured ground-floor survey of the house by H. J. Thomas, and the reason it is not identified as a discrete source in the HER source list.
23. The contemporaneous source for the statement that the 1974 record remained partial "because of problems of access created by an ownership dispute" — field note, correspondence, or later interpretation — together with any record of who restricted access, when, and which parts of the building were inaccessible.
24. The Trust's recommendations arising from the 1990 evaluation, as issued, and any record of the local planning authority's response.

PART E — 1992 TO 1994 reserved matters, the condition breach, and the excavation

25. The Trust's consultee response to reserved matters application 92/00671/RES and any correspondence with Wyn Thomas + Partners or Ideal Homes Wales Ltd.
26. All records relating to the Trust's notification to the Vale of Glamorgan in December 1993 that groundworks had commenced and that Condition 18 of 89/01396/OUT had not been complied with, including the recommendation that a Breach of Condition Notice be issued and the reference to the Disused Burial Grounds (Amendment) Act 1981.
27. The local planning authority's reply to that notification, and any record of the Trust's response to the Council's position that Condition 18 was discharged on approval of the reserved matters.

28. All correspondence about compliance with Conditions 16, 17 and 18, including the letters bearing the Council's references AP/GLP/89/01396/OUT, TD/JSJ/92/00671/RES, TD/JM/92/00671/RES and TD/KH/92/00671/RES.
29. Records of the multi-party meeting understood to have been held on 4 May 1994 between the Council, the Trust, Ideal Homes Wales Ltd and Cotswold Archaeological Trust, including agenda, minutes and any agreed mitigation strategy or written scheme of investigation.
30. All records of the Trust's monitoring of the 1994 excavation by Cotswold Archaeological Trust: site visit notes, monitoring reports, and the correspondence recording the Trust's reservations about the conduct and quality of that work.
31. Any correspondence concerning the Home Office licence of 21 March 1994 under section 25 of the Burial Act 1857 for the disinterment and removal of human remains, and any variation or extension of it.
32. Any correspondence with Cadw about whether the site should be scheduled, 1993–1995.
33. The record of what became of the watching brief recommended in 1990 on the surviving parts of Great House Farm: who carried it out, when, and where the report is.

PART F — ARCHIVE, FINDS AND HUMAN REMAINS where the material now is

34. The present location and accession details of the paper and digital site archives for the 1978–1980, 1990 and 1994 interventions.
35. The accession details for the medieval ironwork held by the National Museum of Wales that is understood to be associated with the "armour" reported from beneath the rear wing of the house in or about 1880, and any Trust record of that identification.
36. Any Trust record of the three human skeletons of possible thirteenth-century date recovered during utility trench works in 1963 and recorded by the Barry and Vale Archaeological Group, and of their present whereabouts.
37. Any Trust record of the present whereabouts and treatment of the human remains excavated in 1994, including any record of reburial.
38. Any material recovered from the demolition rubble in 1988–1989, and its present location.

PART G — RECORD-QUALITY QUESTIONS points on which I may have misread the record

39. What "partially recorded" is intended to convey in the HER narrative, and which parts of the ground floor were in fact measured in 1974.
40. Whether the 1990 Trench 7 evidence corresponds with the Dairy as shown on the 1974 measured plan, and if so where Trench 7 sits against that plan.
41. What the figures of 1,026, 858 and approximately 801 each represent in the excavation records, and how they relate to one another.
42. What feature each of the differing grid references for this site is intended to fix, and whether the HER site point has moved between revisions.
43. What date and source Heneb holds for the demolition, distinguishing the outbuildings from the farmhouse.
44. Whether any assertion that there was an "anomaly" in the 1974 survey arrangements derives from a contemporaneous source, and if so which.

PART H — ADMINISTRATIVE so that later correspondence goes to the right place

45. Confirmation of which legal entity now holds the records and functions formerly of Glamorgan-Gwent Archaeological Trust Ltd, and the date of transfer.

46. Heneb's records-management and retention policy as it applies to the GGAT paper archive, and the physical location of that archive.
 47. Any record of destruction, disposal, transfer or loss affecting records relating to this site.
 48. The name and role of the officer responsible for access requests of this kind.

Format and charges. Electronic copies are preferred where they exist. I am content to inspect hard-copy material by appointment. Please notify any reasonable copying or staff-time charge in advance for approval, rather than treating cost as a reason to refuse.

Scope. Where a record is held but is considered exempt or excepted from disclosure, I ask that its existence be confirmed and the exception identified, so that the point can be considered separately.

Purpose. This is a documentary request. It is not a complaint about Heneb or its staff, and nothing in it is intended as such.
